

THE BUILDING CONTROL BILL

(No. XI of 2012)

Explanatory Memorandum

The object of this Bill is to repeal the Building Act and to replace it by new legislation which will cater for the exigencies and realities of the construction industry. The Bill aims at regulating building works in order to ensure safety, comfort, energy efficiency and aesthetic value.

2. Many buildings are designed and planned with little or no input from an architect or engineer, and are constructed without adequate supervision. A post-control mechanism has been introduced through a system of control of compliance by local authorities. The Bill defines and regulates the responsibility and accountability of different professionals involved in the construction process. The Bill also provides for the liability of the builder towards developers or eventual buyers, and of the developer engaged in residential or commercial letting towards eventual buyers or lessees, to be better guaranteed through different types of mandatory property damage insurance policies against defects.

3. The Bill also provides for the making of regulations which will set minimum building standards for functionality, safety and sustainability, with a view to guaranteeing the safety and comfort of users, energy efficiency and aesthetic value. A Building Control Advisory Council will be responsible for advising the Minister on the regulations to be made, and for formulating policies for a more effective, safe, efficient and sustainable construction of buildings.
